Course Outline

- I. Title: The 119th Regular Session on Land Policy for Sustainable Rural Development
- II. Organizer: International Center for Land Policy Studies and Training
- III. Duration: 41 days, scheduled for September 13 through October 23, 2013
(excluding arrival and departure)
- IV. Target Audience: 27 international participants of medium and high level government officials or experts in the fields of Land Policy for Sustainable Rural Development
- V. Objectives:
 1. Providing the participants with understanding of the most recent lessons learned in achieving goals for effective rural land administration where policy is dominated by rapid urban growth, world trade agreements and competition over natural resources.
 2. Introducing the participants to the techniques of information management and institutional development that integrate rural populations into the overall national economic, political and social development;
 3. Giving the participants a deeper knowledge of institutional and administrative means for effective management of natural resource endowments, and land/resource tenure systems as a functional framework for meeting national development goals;
 4. Arming the participants with skills and perspectives in assessment, and modeling; broad knowledge and applicability of land information systems (LIS) and geographic information systems (GIS) in developing or transition country situations;
 5. To explore with participants models, policy development and policy implementation regarding;
 - (1) Property Ownership and Land Tenure Dynamics
 - (2) Developing Land Information System
 - (3) Rural Economy and Development
 - (4) Managing Local Governance for Sustainable Development
 - (5) Land policy experience in Taiwan
- VI. Course Components
 1. General Structure:
 - (1) Land Tenure Reform (Week 1): Major land tenure reform approaches; Comparative analysis of international experience; Post-reform institutional support; and methodologies for continuing the benefits of land tenure reform projects.
 - (2) Application of Information Science to Rural Land Administration (Week 2): Recent developments in information technologies and their application to rural land administration; Designing applications for improved land administration; public land administration.

- (3) Rural Economy and Development (Week 3): Economic Theoretical Interpretations for Land Ownership and Agricultural Development, Agriculture Roles and Characteristics, Institutional Economics and Land Administration, Land Administration and its Impacts on Economic Performance, Land Prices Formation and its Relations with Economics.
- (4) Managing Local Governance (Week 4): Decentralization and developing local governance capacity; comparative experience in rural democracy building; building local-level land administration capacity; the role of NGOs.
- (5) Land Policy Experience in Taiwan (Week 5 and Week 6): Sustainable local development, land reform and rural land use; land policy, management, and taxation; agricultural land policy, land information system; indigenous land policy, and visits to various levels of governments, research institutions.

2. Instructors (tentative): Instructors include two course coordinators, five international lecturers and 10 local lecturers.

3. Presentation

- (1) In addition to class lecturing and field trips, the program at the International Center of Land Policy Studies and Training (ICLPST) encourages interaction among participants. Individuals are expected to not only learn the theory from the lectures of the instructors, but also learn through debate about real problems from case presentation and active discussion with fellow participants and other professionals. Therefore, each participant will be required to make a twenty-minute presentation to the group about the major problems facing land tenure and rural development in their countries.
- (2) The presentation shall include the following components:
 - A. Country Background: The first part of your presentation should include general information about your country's land and agricultural policies, land tenure, land administration as well as some major rural development issues. You should consider the following points:
 - a. Geographic Background: It is helpful to bring a map of your country.
 - b. Land Administration System: Information of the political system would facilitate understanding of land policy making in your country.
 - c. Your Job or Position: Try to identify the functional role of your working institution in terms of rural land administration.
 - d. Issues and Solutions: To your best knowledge, identify the major issues of rural land administration, rural land use planning and rural development in your country. Examples of efficient solutions and difficult experiences are welcome to share with all participants.

- e. Future Challenges: It would be useful to identify the foreseen major rural land administration issues of primary concern in your country.
 - B. Problems and Solutions: In addition to background information, the presentation should cover at least one major contemporary rural land tenure and/or land administration problem in their countries. To take advantages of participants' working experience, they are free to choose a topic at their convenience and should be prepared to explain the nature of the above said problem.
- (3) Preparation: It is expected that participants will have prepared materials for their presentations prior to their arrival at ICLPST. Besides, multi-media such as video player, slide, overhead, computer and projector will be available for the presentation. During the training course, the participants will be divided into four panels in accordance with the four themes covered in the first four weeks. Each panel shall be composed of six to eight participants, in accordance with the participants' expertise and choice of time. The four themes are as follows:
 - A. Land Tenure Regulations and Systems in Participating Countries
 - B. Land Information Technology in Participating Countries
 - C. Rural Economy and Development in Participating Countries
 - D. Land Governance and Rural Land Use in the Participating Countries
- 4. Field Trips: The field trips and cultural visits are arranged in line with the specific topics dealt with in the course; they typically take the participants to land management agencies in the central and local governments, academic research institutes, etc.; within the trips and visits, the participants are given a chance to take in the beautiful views in some internationally renowned scenic spots and cultural sites, which are hoped to help the participants see and feel for themselves Taiwan's developments in its society and economy as well as its friendly people and good tradition.
- 5. NOTE WELL:
 - (1) The course emphasizes experience sharing and direct participation; lectures and participants' presentation are all conducted in English, while field trips and cultural visits are guided by the Center's staff members, who act as interpreters whenever necessary to enable the participants to better communicate and understand the hosts during the visits.
 - (2) In each of the five objectives identified above, instructors would be expected to provide (a) appropriate theory that informs the subject, (b) a discussion of cases illustrating the implementation success/failures of the subject, and (c) prescription for appropriate policy action in developing and transition economy countries. Participants are encouraged to take part in class discussions so that the participating countries' experiences can be shared. The course makes extensive use of technical seminars to enhance the sharing and common understanding of imparted knowledge.

Concerned Authorities related to Land Policy for Sustainable Rural Development
Republic of India
c/o
Taipei Economic and Cultural Center in New Delhi, Republic of India

Dear Sir/Madam:

Subject: Invitation to Nominate Country Participants to Attend ICLPST Regular Session on Land Policy for Sustainable Rural Development

On behalf of International Center for Land Policy Studies and Training (ICLPST), I cordially invite your country to nominate candidates for participation in the Center's 119th Regular Session on Land Policy for Sustainable Rural Development.

The 119th Regular Session will commence on September 13 and conclude on October 23, 2013. Please kindly nominate two candidates for our consideration. The Screening Committee of the Center will make the final selection of the participants to the session, and the Center will accept no more than one candidate.

To facilitate your nomination and the ICLPST's selection as well, please kindly observe the following regulations and guidelines:

- (a) All nominees must be proficient in both spoken and written English in order to be able to follow lectures and instructions conducted in English.
- (b) Nominees must be persons who are presently working in the areas of land policy and rural development or any other areas related to the subject matter.
- (c) Nominees must have studied courses at college level that are relevant to this training, such as land policy and administration, rural development, agricultural economics, rural sociology, agrarian reform and so on.

(d) Nominees must be under the age of 55 years, preferably younger, and must be medically certified as fit for study and travel abroad. Please see enclosed Form of Medical Report for required check-up.

Please note that, for each trainee, the ICLPST will provide a round-trip economy-class air ticket for travel between his/her country's capital city and Taipei by the most direct route, and will take care of the board and lodging expenses during the training session. The Center, however, will not pay for any other incidental expenses in connection with the trainee's travel such as visa fees, airport taxes, en-route hotel accommodations etc.

All successful nominees should have valid passports and visas (they shall apply for Visa valid for two month stay) for entry into the Republic of China (Taiwan). In addition, trainees are requested to prepare a typed short country report, and other supporting documents relating to the training theme. These materials will be used for presentation and discussion in Participants' Presentation some time, it is suggested that this requirement should be brought to the notice of your nominee as early as possible.

After finishing your nomination, please kindly ask the nominees to fill in the enclosed application forms and then forward them to Taipei Economic and Cultural Center in New Delhi, Republic of India for onward transmission to the Center before August 6, 2013. Please kindly note that medical report will be valid and accepted by insurance company if the check-up is taken after May 13, 2012 with results on all required items. Successful nominees will be duly notified of the Center's decision.

Finally, I wish to thank you in advance for your cooperation.

Sincerely yours,

Hui-Ling Wu
Director
